3003 Curriculum

A. The President, administration, and faculty have the responsibility for developing curriculum subject to Board approval. Upon approval, the administration and faculty carry the responsibility for implementation, and for the regular review and evaluation of programs and courses. Further, they will assure that program and course quality and learning goals are consistent across all modes of delivery and at all locations.

B. Changes to the College’s general education requirements must have Board approval.

C. New credit-bearing courses and programs require Board approval, except in cases where new courses are being piloted following approved College procedures.

D. Changes to existing courses and programs will be brought to the Board for approval if the President deems such changes to be substantive.
